OUR NEW ISSUE IS OUT!

Hello, my friend!

Do you like reading books? I feel like you answered: “What kind of question is that? Of course, I do!” Well, if that is the case, let me ask you another question. Have you ever wondered how your favourite books are prepared and printed? In this issue, we have researched for you the various stages and great journey your favourite books go through and looked at the different people who are involved in their production. As always, a fun-filled and exciting adventure awaits you on every page.

WHAT'S UP?

The world's whitest paint has recently been developed. After six years of work, a research team at the University of Purdue in the USA introduced a new ultra-white paint. This paint not only reflects 98% of sunlight but also prevents the absorption of infrared heat onto the surface that it covers. To give you some perspective, regular white paints that are currently in use can absorb an average of 10% of sunlight and reflect 80 to 90%. Using this paint on buildings will likely help reduce overheating because of its ability to reflect more sunlight.

The Whitest Paint

Observer Robot on Duty

Inspired by sloths, scientists built a slow-moving energy efficient robot. The solar powered robot is capable of wandering across the branches of trees and recording for months. It is designed to observe and monitor endangered animal species in their natural habitats. Thanks to its sophisticated technology, the robot may prove to be a good solution for monitoring animals in their habitat without causing disturbance.

THE JOURNEY OF A BOOK

Do you like reading books? I feel like you answered: "What kind of question is that? Of course, I do!" Well, if that is the case, let me ask you another question. Have you ever wondered how your favourite books are prepared and printed?"

A photograph of two brown bear cubs climbing a tree trunk in a forest. The cubs are positioned on either side of the tree trunk, with their paws gripping the bark. The background is a soft-focus forest with green foliage and tree trunks. The title 'Animals play too' is written in a large, white, cursive font across the middle of the image.

Animals play too

Written by: İsmail Bilgiç

While walking on the street, you must have seen a cat rub up against your legs. It looks at you as if to say, “Play with me!” Or you may have noticed that when you throw something away, a dog runs to fetch it.

Being playful is true for most animals, nearly all of them like to play. They learn many things through playing games.

THE FLOATING MOUNTAINS

Zhangjiajie National Forest Park is situated in the northwest of the Hunan Province of China. This is one of the most interesting places on Earth. These mountains look as though they are man-made. They are also called 'Sky Column Mountains.' They spread over an area of 70 square kilometres. The distinct shapes and structures were formed over time due to water and wind erosion, just like how it happened in the "Fairy Chimneys" in Turkey.

The Beautiful Country of the Balkans

KOSOVO

Hello, my friend, how have you been keeping? I am talking to you from a Balkan country right now. The famous Turkish explorer, Awliya Chalabi, referred to this country as "the place with 2000 houses made of stone and 300 shops." I am in a country that was once Ottoman territory. In fact, the Ottoman Sultan, Murad Khan, was martyred here. It is a place where you can feel the traces of the Great Ottoman State at every step you take. Are you wondering which country I am visiting now? Let's get started! If you're ready, let's fly through Kosovo together!
